NEW QUESTION: 3
You are approached by the company where you have been working for a considerable length of time to manage an existing project. However you are not familiar with the area in which this project is occurring. There is a Project Management Plan in place and the baseline change thresholds have not been exceeded. The current status of the project does not please the customer. What would your first action be?
A. Verification that the change control system is operating properly.
B. Identifying critical float time.
C. Verification of the customer's needs and expectations.
D. Preparation of a corrective action plan.
E. Conducting team-building exercises with all stakeholders.
Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 4
Working in the systems integration field, you are primarily responsible for coordinating the work of numerous subcontractors. Your current project is coming to an end. You have 15 major subcontractors as well as a variety of other sellers. Now that you are closing contracts (procurements), you should_____

A. Conduct a procurement audit
B. Ask each contractor to meet with you individually at its own expense
C. Use earned value to assess lessons learned
D. Conduct a trend analysis
Answer: A
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference:
Explanation:
The procurement audit attempts to identify successes and failures relative to the procurement process especially in terms of the preparation or administration of other procurement contracts on the project or on other projects in the organization. Uncovering and reporting both successes and failures can contribute to the project management knowledge base and improve the quality of project management services. A procurement audit should be conducted as part of the close procurements process.
