Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3

A facilities manager has observed varying electric use on the company's metered service lines. The facility management rarely interacts with the IT department unless new equipment is being delivered.

However, the facility manager thinks that there is a correlation between spikes in electric use and IT department activity. Which of the following business processes and/or practices would provide better management of organizational resources with the IT department's needs? (Select TWO).

- A. Implementation of change management best practices
- B. Deploying a radio frequency identification tagging asset management system
- C. Facility management participation on a change control board
- D. Purchasing software asset management software
- E. Designing a business resource monitoring system
- F. Rewriting the change board charter
- G. Hiring a property custodian

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

The purpose of the change management process is to ensure that: Standardized methods and procedures are used for efficient and prompt handling of all changes

All changes to service assets and configuration items are recorded in the configuration management system

Business risk is managed and minimized

All authorized changes support business needs and goals

Changes should be managed to:

Reduce risk exposure

Minimize the severity of any impact and disruption

Be successful on the first attempt

The implementation of change management processes should involve a change control board. The change control board is a committee that makes decisions regarding whether or not proposed changes to a project should be implemented. In this question, there is a correlation between spikes in electric use and

IT department activity. Therefore, someone from facility management should be part of the change control board.

Incorrect Answers:

A: Deploying a radio frequency identification tagging asset management system would not provide better management of organizational resources with the IT department's needs.

B: We do not need a resource monitoring system. The facilities management can monitor resources. We just need the involvement of facilities management with the planning of IT changes.

C: Property custodians are responsible for managing equipment, supplies, parts etc. A property custodian would not provide better management of organizational resources with the IT department's needs.

D: Software asset management software is used to monitor software assets. It will not provide better management of organizational resources with the IT department's needs.

F: It is not necessary to rewrite the change board charter. We just need to get facilities management involved in change management.
