NEW QUESTION: 1
Your network has client computers that run Windows 7. A custom Web-based application requires specific security settings. You need to prevent users from permanently modifying their Internet Explorer browsers security settings.
What should you do?
A. Use Windows Internet Explorer Maintenance (IEM) extension settings in Normal mode
B. Use Windows Internet Explorer Maintenance (IEM) extension settings in Preference mode
C. Restore the advanced settings in Internet Explorer
D. Reset the Internet Explorer settings
Answer: A
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference:
Explanation:
Normal mode, you can configure IEM settings so that they are refreshed on users' computers on a periodic basis (or each time the users log in). However, users can temporarily change these settings between the times scheduled for their setting refresh. For this reason, these settings in Normal mode behave as "pseudo-policies."

In Preference mode, you can configure IEM settings, but allow users to change these settings later by using the Internet Explorer 9 user interface.
