NEW QUESTION: 1

Which of the following statements are true about perimeter security?

- A. Perimeter security can be a component of a defense-in-depth strategy.
- B. Perimeter security is most effective for protection against insider threats.

C. The Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) is the most protected zone of the network, which should be reserved for only the most sensitive data.

D. It is most effective when there is only one perimeter. For example, when inner perimeters are established, they reduce the effectiveness of outer perimeters.

E. Connections should not be permitted to span more than one perimeter or firewall.

F. Though it is often associated with network security, it also applies to physical security measures as fences and locked doors.

Answer: A,E,F

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

A: Your inner perimeter consists of the doors, windows and walls of your building(s). Protecting your inner perimeter is usually accomplished with locks, keys and alarm systems.

D:

E: Defense in depth is a security strategy in which multiple, independent, and mutually reinforcing security controls are leveraged to secure an IT environment. Defense in depth should be applied so that a combination of firewalls, intrusion detection and prevention, user management, authentication, authorization, and encryption mechanisms are employed across tiers and network zones.

Defense in depth is compatible with perimeter security in that network perimeters (or more generically, protection zones) can make up part of the defense in depth strategy.

Incorrect answers:

B: Inner perimeter increase security.

C: Usually the perimeter or barrier itself is expanded into a third zone, named the demilitarized zone (DMZ). The DMZ offers some protection to public-facing systems, and further protection to production systems behind the perimeter firewalls.

F: Perimeter security is not effective against insider threats.

NEW QUESTION: 2

A company is building a stock trading application that requires sub-millisecond latency in processing trading requests. Amazon DynamoDB is used to store all the trading data that is used to process each request. After load testing the application, the development team found that due to data retrieval times, the latency requirement is not satisfied. Because of sudden high spikes in the number of requests, DynamoDB read capacity has to be significantly over-provisioned to avoid throttling.

What steps should be taken to meet latency requirements and reduce the cost of running the application?

A. Store trading data in Amazon S3 and use Transfer Acceleration.

B. Add retries with exponential back-off for DynamoDB queries

C. Use DynamoDB Accelerator to cache trading data.

D. Add Global Secondary Indexes for trading data.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Refer AWS documentation - DynamoDB Accelerator

Amazon DynamoDB Accelerator (DAX) is a fully managed, highly available, in-memory cache for DynamoDB that delivers up to a 10x performance improvement - from milliseconds to microseconds - even at millions of requests per second. DAX does all the heavy lifting required to add in-memory acceleration to your DynamoDB tables, without requiring developers to manage cache invalidation, data population, or cluster management. Now you can focus on building great applications for your customers without worrying about performance at scale.
